

Raise Funds for Your Organization AND Protect Our Streams and Creeks

Washing cars to raise money for worthy causes is a time-honored, all-American tradition – but such activities can have a significant impact on our local waterways. Storm drains lead directly to streams and creeks and so the dirt, grease, and soap washed from cars flow untreated into local waterways. Teaming up with a commercial car wash for your next fund-raising event is one way that you can help to prevent pollution from reaching our waters.

The Keep it Clean Partnership (KICP) is working with local car washes to encourage residents to use commercial facilities to wash their cars. Over a dozen car washes in Boulder County and portions of Weld County are now displaying signs provided by KICP that thank their customers for helping to keep dirty and soapy water from reaching our streams and creeks. Many of these car washes are also willing to make their facilities available to charitable organization for their fund-raising events. By holding your car wash at their facilities, you will help keep pollutants out of our streams and creeks.

Please consider contacting one of these car washes before your next fundraiser:
